YOU SURELY HAVE

A TRADING STAMP BOOK.

If you have not you are an exception to the general rule, for nearly every one you meet now has a book begun, and a great many have already filled several books and received beautiful presents merely by handing in their books with the stamps.

We give Trading Stamps to every purchaser of ten cents' worth or more of merchandise and yet enable you to buy goods way below the prices of others, because we buy our merchandise in such quantities and direct from the largest manufacturers and mills everywhere, besides giving you the benefit of Trading Stamps. The Trading Stamp feature has come to stay, and many useful articles can be secured through filling your stamp books. It would pay you to visit the headquarters of the Washington Trading Stamp Company, which is directly opposite our establishment, and see the magnificent articles of merchandise, both useful and ornamental, which they give away. One finds here Guitars, Mandolins, Zithers, Violins, Onyx Tables, Books, Roger's Silver Ware, Roger's Knives and Forks, Tea and Tablespoons, Clocks, Cameras, Opera Glasses, Solid Gold Rings, Furniture, Rocking Chairs, Tables, Pictures, Cut Glass, Dresden China, Ladies' and gentlemen's hundred-dollar Bicycles, which take seven books full; Sewing Machines which need five; Lamps, Brussels Carpet Sweepers, etc.

THE TRADING-STAMP HEADQUARTERS are open daily from eight o'clock until six, and on Mondays and Saturdays, for the convenience of those who cannot come during the day, they keep open until nine o'clock. They have polite people to show you these presents and explain to you any feature of the Trading-Stamp business that you do not comprehend.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Admiral and Mrs. Roe have returned from an extended Northern trip and have resided their home on Seventeenth street.

Miss Tenn Mcintosh, of Hickory, N. C., is visiting her cousin, Mrs. J. S. Tomlinson, No. 1233 Eleventh street northwest.

The far and conference will be complemented by ex-Secretary John W. Foster, who will give a reception in their honor tomorrow evening.

Tonight is Halloween, and the small boys, not to be done out of his celebration because of the falling on Sunday, was rampant last night with his flour bag and will doubtless-being a small boy-repeat his achievements tomorrow.

Miss Elsie McKeever sailed for Europe last week for a short visit abroad, with Mrs. Feasting of New York.

Gen. and Mrs. McKeever, who have been absent from the city since their trip early in the summer to Canada, have returned to their residence, No. 1608 H street, from Pontreux, Conn., where they have been recently staying.

Memorial Services. A memorial service for Prof. Daniel, the well-known musician, who died on the 25th of last August, will be held at St. John's Church, today. Dr. Mackay-Smith, the rector, assisted by Dr. Elliott, of Ascension Church, will conduct the service. It is thought that Bishop Satterlee may attend, also.

Mrs. C. King Will Continue the Business. Mrs. C. King has purchased the entire stock of both stores—812-814 Seventh street and 715 Market Space—from the estate of H. King, Jr. She will continue to conduct the business under the same firm name of King's Palace, and it will be her endeavor to maintain the high reputation that it has won. She has long been the mainstay of the business and well merits the sincere appreciation of her many friends.

MANY NOVEMBER WEDDINGS

It Will Rival October in Its Nuptial Events.

The Approaching Marriage of Miss Cora Perkins to Colonel Frank Crawford Letts.

It needs no prophet to foretell that November will rival October as a month of weddings. The latest announcement made and for which a large number of invitations have been sent out, is for the marriage, at the Church of the Covenant, of Miss Cora Perkins, the daughter of ex-Governor Basil W. Perkins, of Kansas, to Frank Crawford Letts, U. S. A., colonel on the staff of Gov. Drake, of Iowa, which will be solemnized November 11, at 4:30 p. m.

The best man will be Mr. Charles E. Clark, of Washington, Iowa, and the groomsmen selected are Mr. Chapman Perkins, a brother of the bride; Mr. John Williams, Mr. Arnold Butt, Mr. Collin Stoddard, of Washington; Mr. Lynn Norris of Iowa, and Mr. John S. Bason, of Baltimore. Miss Josephine Perkins will attend her sister as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, all of them school friends of the bride, will be Miss Mary Jones, the daughter of Senator Jones, of Arkansas; Miss Alice Burdette, of Washington; Miss Ida Owen of Iowa; Miss Helen, of Kansas; Miss Helen, of St. Paul, Minn.; Miss Bertha Funk, of Hagerstown, Md.; and Miss Florence Ennor, of Baltimore. The bride will be given in marriage by Mr. Beriah Williams, who is her mother's kinsman. The church ceremony will be followed by a reception at the family residence, 1815 Sixteenth street, from 5 o'clock to 6:30.

Col. Letts will arrive here next Saturday by special car from his home in Marshalltown, Iowa. He will be accompanied by his brother, Mr. John Letts, and wife, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Deane, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Nate Spencer, and Miss Gertrude Spencer, Mr. Lynn Norris and Mr. Charles St. Clair. The wedding will be preceded by several entertainments, the first of which will be a theater party to be given to the bridal group by the groom-elect shortly after he reaches Washington. On the night before the wedding, after the church rehearsal, he will also give a banquet to his groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Stevens have closed their summer home at Altica, which is about thirty miles from Canada, and one of the pleasantest spots in Northern New York. They are back again at their handsome residence on Sixteenth street, but will leave for New York early in the month to be present at the horse show.

The ladies of the Litchfield inaugurated the season's gaieties Friday evening with a Halloween party, the mystic eve being celebrated a few evenings in advance so that a number of the gentlemen guests could enjoy the festivities before going to their respective homes to vote. The dancing bout was from 9 to 12. Among those present were Mrs. and Miss Benham, Mr. Millard, the Misses Clements, Baker, Lewis, Walker, Jennings, Bradley, Wood, Mrs. and Miss Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. Burdick, Mr. and Mrs. Mifflin, Prof. Vinot, Dr. Schultz, Dr. Jenner, and Messrs. Ward, Shuster, Frank Dodge, and W. W. Berry.

A marriage has been solemnized in this city last night and the bride, who is this is how it happened: The bride-jew was driving with her fiancé's sister down city hall way where the young man had his law office, when she suggested that they be married by a call. They had their little for their little for their little. The bride's sister heard such disappointment, but it is too good to expect common sense from a bride-to-be. Her first idea was to leave a suitcase of a note on his desk, which would have been lovely if she had stopped at that, but she kept right on reading the addresses on the envelopes of business letters scattered about, until she came to a torn one, partly directed in his own hand. The "biggest" half had been blown away, but on one of the scraps in her possession was the name Elizabeth, and on the other the initial N.

At that instant her heart broke. She said so, and she was a girl whose word her mother could always rely on. So her heart broke and she scribbled an everlasting farewell on his blue blotter, stuck her engagement ring on the head of his sponge monkey pen wiper, and went home with a consciousness that her time had come to die. The remainder of that day she sat listlessly in her red velvet rocker, the day after she lay on her blue brocade lounge, and the third morning she left to her white enamel bed. All this time she would listen to no appeals in behalf of perfidious Romeo, and read none of the messages that he wrote. So she stopped writing messages and then she sent for him—quick Romeo was only too glad of the invitation, and when with the calmness that only approaching death can give, she asked, as a last request, that he would tell her who was that Elizabeth N., to whom he wrote, Romeo answered promptly, "Elizabeth, New Jersey." And so they were married.

The home of Mrs. Agnes Fingles, 618 G street northwest, was the scene of a happy gathering of young and old folk last night, the occasion being a birthday party given to her son, Mr. Leonard Fingles. Under the supervision of Miss Frances Scott games and dancing were indulged in until a late hour, after which all repaired to the dining room to partake of a delightful supper. Among those present were: Mrs. Kraft, Misses Ida and Mabel Kraft, Mr. Carl Scott, Miss Jessie Scott, Mr. William Marr, Mr. J. C. Jones, Miss A. Bessler, Miss Emily Kraft, Mr. John O'Sullivan, Mr. Stephen B. Clements, Mr. M. M. Sullivan, Mrs. Alice G. Fyles, Miss Katie Kraft and Mr. J. C. Oliver.

Cards have been sent out for the marriage of Miss Lucy Marie Ryner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ryner, to Mr. James Lewis Murphy, of Louisiana, November 5, at 8 p. m., at the Fourth Presbyterian Church.

The Letter mentioned on Dupont Circle, is being prepared for the return of the family, who have been in England for some time past. Mr. Letts has already arrived here.

Mrs. John A. Logan, who is comfortably established in one of a row of bricks across

Special Notice To the PUBLIC.

MRS. CAROLINE KING, widow of the late H. King, Jr., has purchased from the representative of his estate all the stock in the stores of King's Palace, 812-814 Seventh Street and 715 Market Space. She will continue the business under the same firm name of King's Palace. She takes this opportunity of thanking her many friends for their patronage, and assures them that it will be her earnest endeavor to conduct the business in the same honorable manner that has made it the leading Millinery Establishment in town. For the past forty years Washington ladies have found King's Palace the best and cheapest place in which to purchase their Millinery, Cloaks, etc., and the splendid reputation it has obtained will be most jealously maintained. The entire present stock will be sold at a great sacrifice. Beginning Monday, special prices will prevail all over the store. Announcements of special bargains will be made in the papers, and whatever is advertised will be absolutely true.
